

UTILIZING STORYTELLING IN LEGAL JUSTICE ACTIVISM

WORKSHOP INVITATION - MUMBAI, INDIA

Please joins us for a 5-day collaborative and participatory workshop in Mumbai in January 2017. The workshop will introduce participants to the storytelling and story documentation model used by The BuSSy Project, a method to provide survivors with a voice, a safe space to express and discuss their personal testimonies, the injustices they have been subjected to.

The workshop will also look at how these stories can be used sensitively and impactfully within legal justice activism. SAHR will draw on its experience in the field to navigate the discussion on how storytelling can be an avenue for change and tool for justice.

When: Monday 23 January - Friday 27 January 2017, 9am - 6pm

Where: Fort, Mumbai

How: Places are limited. To register your interest in attending, please complete and submit this form before 5pm IST, 25 November 2016. Please note this workshop is free, including lunch and snacks. This workshop is open to women only.

- Are you a lawyer, activist, community leader or development worker?
- Does your role include defending women's rights in India?
- Do you work directly with women and girl survivors of violence?

This workshop is organised and facilitated by:

SAHR is a non profit human rights law firm that works to uphold the rights of women and girls. Using legal action as a tool, they ensure that even the most marginalised women and girls have access to a type of justice that dignifies, honours and empowers them.

www.sa-hr.org

The BuSSy Project is a performing arts project that documents and gives voice to censored untold stories about gender in different communities in Egypt. The project organizes storytelling workshops and performances where women and men can step on stage to share their stories.

www.bussyblog.wordpress.com

Supported by:

