

Methodology of the Course:

- Purely Case Law Method

Reading/Reference Material:

- Reading/Reference material (Consisting of articles, reports and case laws) will be provided to every participant on registration.

Evaluation Method:

- The evaluation will be in the form of an Objective Type of Test (Multiple Choice Questions).

Who Can Participate:

- Advocates
- Legal personnel/ Legal Advisors
- Aspirants for Judicial Services
- Students (pursuing full time undergraduate/postgraduate programmes in Law)

Duration:

14 hours

Number of participants:

Maximum 40

Last Date for Registration:

3rd of October, 2017

Non- Refundable Fees:

- Per Participant: ₹1000/-

Note: The fees includes registration charges and course kit only. Additional charges shall be applicable for breakfast, lunch, dinner and accommodation etc. In case, the participant requires assistance for identifying or booking accommodation feel free to contact.

How to Apply:

- Each applicant shall pay requisite fees by following the link given below and thereafter shall send an email of payment details with a subject caption “Payment Details of ATPOCSI” to the email address: fsakkarnaikar@gnlu.ac.in
- <https://www.onlinesbi.com/prelogin/icollecthome.htm?corpID=627430>
Note: Google Chrome will be suitable browser while making the payment

For any queries please feel free to email or contact:

fsakkarnaikar@gnlu.ac.in Cell +91 8128650849

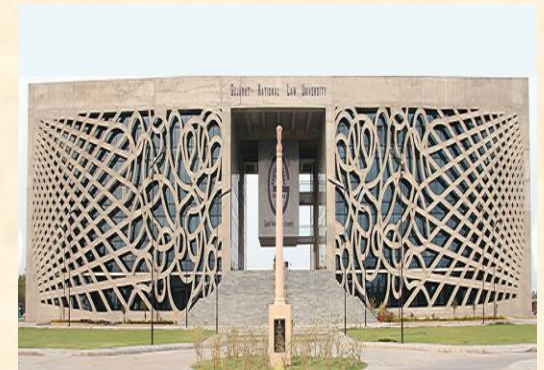

Programme Co-Ordinator

Dr. Fakkires S. Sakkarnaikar
Assistant Professor of Law

ADVANCED TRAINING PROGRAMME ON CANONS OF STATUTORY INTERPRETATION

6th 7th and 8th of October, 2017

Gujarat National Law University
Attalika Avenue,
Knowledge Corridor,
Koba, Gandhinagar - 382426
(Gujarat), India.

About the Course:

The chief source of law is legislation. The other sources are precedents and customs. Every source of law finds its expression in a language. Language is the property of the people and not that of law, though some words may acquire special legal meaning and may become a part of the legal terminology. However, a great bulk of words used in a legal draft belongs to the ordinary language. What meaning is to be given to a word used in a legislation, custom or precedent or in a private deed or will? Even the dictionary does not give the clear-cut meaning of a word. It gives many alternative meanings applicable in different contexts and for different purposes so that no clear field for the application of a word becomes identified so long as expansion of meaning takes place uniformly by judicial interpretation.

Objectives:

Participants will acquire far-reaching knowledge on different rules of interpretation of statutes adopted by the High Courts and the Supreme Court. Participants would be able to recognise and appreciate the convolutions and limitations of English language. Participants would be able to fathom the significance of public confidence in law through interpretation of statutes. Helps participants to understand the scope for judges to use their own opinions or prejudices. Participants would know the approach of modern judges who have begun to look for a guiding principle, which is called 'purposive approach' to statutes.

Participants will come to know about drafting errors in statutes and how they can be corrected immediately by the courts applying different rules of interpretation of statutes. Finally, helps participants in understanding that, the process of interpretation is not a science but an art to find out the meaning of words in the context of a given situation.

Schedule:

Date	Time	Topic
6-10-2017	10.00 AM-1.10 PM	Outline of the Interpretation of Statutes
6-10-2017	2.00 PM-4.00 PM	Mimamsa v Maxwell (Indian Supreme Court Approach)
7-10-2017	10.00 AM-1.10 PM	Essential Canons of Statutory Interpretation (Land Mark Judgments of Supreme Court)
7-10-2017	2.00PM-4.00 PM	Discussion of Internal Aids to Interpretation in the light of Relevant Cases
8-10-2017	10.00 AM-1.10 PM	Discussion of External Aids to Interpretation in the light of Relevant Cases
8-10-2017	2.00 PM-3.00 PM	Subsidiary Canons of Interpretation and Relevant Cases
8-10-2017	3.00 PM-4.00 PM	Discussion on Recent Developments
8-10-2017	4.10 PM-5.10 PM	Evaluation

Participation Certificate: All the participants of training programme shall be issued a participation certificate on their successful completion.

Resource Person:

Dr. Fakkires S. Sakkarnaikar, Assistant Professor of Law, Gujarat National Law University, has more than 10 years of teaching experience in Gujarat National Law University.